Thanks for this informative article and the comments. From the Back Cover Creative strategies for your retirement years! So, that ship may have sailed for me, but I can still be intentional with my money. Payments toward debt reduce your cash flow. For 32 years we denied our selves some things that we could have bought but for long term did not make sense. When you spend more than you earn, you create debt. It is also a very inefficient way to trade time for money, for us and for everyone has to argue the other side, so it might as well be me. We rarely go out for meals, we find restaurants are typically overpriced, the meals are usually disappointing and we almost always walk away feeling ripped off.
